Abstract: Sheep garment leather have a delicate grain, elegant patterns, soft feeling and full flexibility, and its clothing style is closely following the changes of the international fashion. However, it makes the sheep leather clothing style design characteristic by the restrictions of the existing sheep leather production technology level and the requirement of industry standards. In the actual design process, some of the style shape, structural change, and even some of the design can not be achieved. Firstly, the sheep leather was determined one by one to gain various parameters of the style features. Then, based on these data, the principles in the sheep costume design and performance technology was explored by combining with formal beauty rule in design and the formal beauty characteristics and technique was set out. Eventually, in order to achieve free change in fashion design for sheep garments and fictile diversification of formal beauty, the development perspectives and new direction of sheep garment leather were analyzed by its clothing style features.
